FLAME OF FOREST, KANHA NATIONAL PARK

It is a call for photographers, artists or just about anyone who wishes to connect with nature. Flame of Forest at Kanha National Park invites an intimate few to romance the wilderness and watch the jungle come to life. Stay at one of their four cottages that afford gorgeous views of the sunset over the river, king-size beds, daybeds in the verandahs, and an outside shower. Go on a jeep safari to see if you can track down the tigers or simply identify the 300 species of flora and fauna that grace Kanha. The morning safaris are escorted by trained guides. At night, soak in the warmth of a campfire while enjoying sumptuous home-cooked meals. In the mornings, have a light breakfast and walk around the peaceful riverside. Then enter the Yoga-Shala, an open space where yoga practitioners help you navigate through the stresses and hassles of daily life. The property also organises walks into nearby tribal villages and markets. Part of the lodge is a social enterprise called HATHI (hathi.ch), an initiative providing skill training to indigenous women. The products they manufacture are sold at the lodge and abroad. At the heart of the initiative are workshops for and with local women, for health and hygiene during the menstrual cycle. Truly responsible tourism, at Flame of Forest guests can surrender themselves to nature and experience life in the best possible ways. Try and share this dream with them.

ACCOMMODATION: Their four cottages come with personal courtyards and verandahs with stone floors and handpicked furniture that blends seamlessly into the jungle.

ACTIVITIES: Apart from the safaris and yoga, they conduct nature walks and immersive sessions in a tribal village and market.
